

127 Terpentine Road, Kyogle

THE AMAZON

Picture yourself sitting in a bubbly stream on a hot day surrounded by natural rain forest, untouched for many generations. For years people has been asking me if there has been any untouched wilderness blocks, up the end of a valley with beautiful crystal clear waters, well at last I have found this 170 acres which has it all.

The property enjoys the first use of Warrazambil Creek, from when it flows out of the national parks down stream following the boundary of the property for over 2km's and also having a 1.5km rear boundary joining the Border Ranges National Parks.

Nestled at the start of the property is a two bedroom weekender ideal to camp in and explore the magnificent fauna and flora this property has to offer.

It is just like walking through a rain forest in the Amazon, truly amazing.
